To the Editor:

There's talk that as many as 20 Democrats might be vying for the Presidential nomination next time around in 2020.

Senator (I) Angus King of Maine is not among those mentioned.

I wonder why.

- · He's a Dartmouth graduate (1966).
- He has served as Governor of Maine (1995-2003) and as US Senator since 2013.
- He has wide experience in education, business and the non-profit sector.
- In his many appearances on television he seems affable, well-spoken, knowlegeable, sensible and more than agreeable.
- He looks great on screen and has a better moustache than John Bolton.
- He is 74 years old—perhaps not an advantage—but Joe Biden is two years older; Bernie Sanders is three years older; Elizabeth Warren is three years younger.

I, for one, would like to see him in the mix.
